

ELECTION LAWS

(Brief introduction of INDIAN Laws relating to Elections)

By- ISPL

PREFACE

The present book is written with an aim to provide a bird's view of the present laws governing the elections of parliament and legislative council with special reference to the State of Gujarat. The book does not boast of being an exhaustive commentary on the subject but it does cover all the relevant provisions on the subject. The main purpose is to afford a guide to all the candidates aspiring to serve the Country and their State, so far as their rights and duties qua their election process are concerned. The book is divided in 9 chapters dealing with individual subjects in the light of judicial pronouncements and statutory rules issued from time to time. The 9th chapter contains the 'model code of conduct' as published by the election Commission Of INDIA. The book will prove a useful guide to all those candidates and citizens of INDIA who find it difficult to understand the statutory languages used by the Law makers as this book presents the relevant provisions in a simplified language capable of being understood by laymen.
